County Council gets 2.2% rate on jail bonds

Jefferson County to borrow $43 million

BY BOB DEMAREE

Slightly more than $43 million in construction funds for the new Jefferson County Sheriff and Justice Center will come available later next week, after bonds were solid recently at a 2.2% interest rate.

On Thursday, June 17, money from the bonds will be released and the project will be fully funded at that point and ready to proceed, according to the county's jail project financial advisor, Andrew Lanam, director of public finance at the Indianapolis office of Stifel Investment Banking.

Lanam said he was "very pleased with how the sale turned out." The county received a bond rating of "A" which was improved to "AA" through bond insurance so interest rate on the project will be 2.20%.

"It was very good for the county," Lanam said.

Lanam said the bond sale will provide $43.177 million for the project, just under the $45 million maximum that had been approved.

He noted the County Council had also earlier approved a $2 million appropriation to the project to expedite ground work but that work was never started after bid approval was delayed.

Lanam credited the work of recently retired County Auditor Sherry Eblen, recently installed new County Auditor Heather Huff, and County Commissioner David Bramer for the work they provided during the bond process.

"There was a lot that went into the bond rating calls," Lanam said. "I appreciate how professional everyone was."

King, who fought and was captured during the Battle of the Bulge on Dec. 24, 1944 and spent months in a German POW camp until the camp was liberated on April 2, 1945, received the award. "I cannot imagine a higher honor than meeting you," Frye said of King, 98. " Someone who endured so much so that we can be here tonight as free Americans. There will never be enough thank-yous." Above right: Donald Joe King (center), surrounded by daughter Cindy King (left) and his wife Betty (right) leaves Tuesday's ceremony at Madison City Hall after King, 98, received the city's 2021 Jon Menke Award for Military Service. See A6 for this story.

Madison establishes Golf Board for Sunrise

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison's Parks Board unanimously approved a resolution Monday that will create a separate panel to oversee management of Sunrise Golf Course and handle policies and directives for that municipal park for the foreseeable future.

The resolution, recommended by Mayor Bob Courtney, will allow the Parks Board members to focus on the city's remaining two dozen or so parks while establishing a separate Golf Board dedicated to making the course better managed, more profitable and more responsive to the needs of its patrons. Courtney said with a new golf pro taking over the course later this month for the first time in decades, the timing was right implement the change and develop more oversight on the way the facility does business and serves city taxpayers.

Sunrise, an 18-hole municipal course designed by Gilbert England and opened in 1963, has lost money — and been subsidized by taxpayers through the parks budget — for years including a $370,000 deficit in 2020 despite seeing 26,000 rounds of golf played at the course. The city has been looking at ways to cut expenses and increase revenue in an effort to make the course break even or show a profit and leave more tax dollars on the table to better fund Madison's other parks.

Courtney proposed establishing a two- to four-person board, appointed by him, with at least one member of the Parks Board serving as a voting member and liaison to Parks Board. He said while newly hired PGA Professional Roger D. Gallatin will manage the day-to-day operations of Sunrise Golf Course, the pro shop and grill starting on June 20, the Golf Board will assist by setting policies and recommending directives on everything from course and program development, to marketing and maintenance and other aspects of operation.

Board of Tourism asks County Council to provide oversight on innkeepers tax

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson County's Board of Tourism has asked County Council to change the way the county handles revenues received from the county's innkeepers tax to provide better accountability of funds.

"We have had our own checkbook and we want to bring it into accountability where it's controlled by the county," David Bramer, JCBT president, said. "We want to submit a budget to the council that's for review."

Bramer said the proposal would provide another level of accountability and JCBT board members would feel more comfortable, particularly in their efforts to maintain state audit guidelines.

Council member Ray Denning agreed with Bramer that JCBT's proposal would "provide more oversight."

"Amy Noel is a great example," says Ryan Shaw, manager of the Off-Broadway Taproom and the driving force behind the Taproom's live music schedule. "I believe she sang for the very first time in front of an audience at one of our open mic nights a couple years ago. Now she's The Famous Amy Noel, playing gigs all over town.

"Open mic nights have always been an integral part of the culture here at the Taproom, and even before that, when it was JoeyG's. For years people of all ages and all skill levels would take the stage and share their talents." (In fact, my very first time singing on stage was back when John Walburn was the weekly open mic host at JoeyG's.)

"But then COVID threw a huge monkey wrench into everything," Ryan continues. "I can remember the exact date, March 10, 2020, was our last open mic, and all our music was shut down by that weekend. It feels so good to be opening back up and getting the music going again.

"Going forward we'll have the open mic every Tuesday, then solo acts and bands on Fridays and Saturdays, and it's just a matter of time before we add back Thursdays and Sundays, just like before. Live music five nights a week.

"Jimmy Davis will be the host, so some of the people will also get the thrill of a great guitar player backing them up when they play. Jimmy is super chill, and he makes everybody feel comfortable and welcome on the stage.

"I feel like the open mic forum is an important part of the community music scene. It gives a lot of people a chance to sing and play who might not otherwise get the opportunity. Plus we've found a lot of music acts through open mic that we later hire for the weekends.

Traffic stop nets drug charges

BY THE COURIER STAFF

A traffic stop by Madison Police in downtown Madison led to the arrest of two men on drug charges late Tuesday night.

Patrolman Cameron Blankenship was making a traffic stop on a vehicle in the 1000 block of West Main Street at approximately 10:44 p.m. when he noticed attempts by the passenger, Daniel J. Ritch Jr., 28, Madison, to hide his identity.

Daniel J. Ritch Jr.

Christopher Allen Caudle

After Patrolman Cody Lewis and K-9 officer Brian Ashcraft arrived to assist with the stop, it was determined that there were outstanding Jefferson County warrants for the arrest of Ritchie.

Ashcraft's partner, K-9 Colt, alerted a positive indication for narcotics, leading to a search of the vehicle and drugs were discovered.

The driver of the vehicle, Christopher Allen Caudle, 41, Madison, was charged with Possession of Methamphetamine, a Level 6 felony. Ritch was arrested on the warrants for failure to appear on previous charges of Possession of Methamphetamine, Possession of a Syringe and Battery, all Level 6 felonies; Theft, a Class A misdemeanor; and Possession of Marijuana, a Class B misdemeanor.

Both were lodged in the Jefferson County Jail. Caudle is being held on a $1,000 cash bond while Ritch is being held on a $10,000 cash bond.

Elsewhere, an unrelated MPD investigation into possible drug activity in downtown Madison led to the arrest of a Walnut Street man late Monday night on drug and paraphernalia charges.

Madison Police Lt. Season Jackson led the investigation when she and other MPD officers responded to a residence in the 900 block of Walnut Street at approximately 11:56 p.m. due to suspected narcotic activity. As a result of that investigation, Richard H. Daniels Jr., 55, was found to be in possession of methamphetamine, marijuana and paraphernalia associated with the use of drugs.

Daniels was taken into custody and transported to the Jefferson County Jail where he is currently incarcerated on a $1,000 cash bond.

According to MPD Chief John Wallace, Monday's arrest was unrelated to the department's drug tip line but he encouraged citizens to use that phone line to contact the department if they suspect narcotic activity in their neighborhoods. The Drug Tip number is 812-265-2121 and callers may remain anonymous.

Meanwhile, County Council member Gary Copeland questioned Bramer on how close JCBT is to reaching a contract with Visit Madison Inc., which the two entities have been working toward for six months.

"We're working to get that finished," Bramer said.

As the Council's representative on the VMI board, Copeland noted that "VMI is anxious and they are not sure where it's going to land."

Bramer said the contract is close and "there should be something next week ... I can't say specifically. I know there's been a delay in that. There has been sizeable issues we've tried to overcome and correct."

Bramer said he plans to work with JCBT attorney Joe Colussi to draft a proposal for the July County Council meeting. "I just wanted to make sure you're open to that and let you know what our plans are. I will talk to Joe so that we have something for you at your next meeting."

In other business, the council:

• Set dates for planning the 2022 budget. There will be all-day sessions from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Aug. 9-10 as well as two Monday meetings later in the month on Aug. 23 and 30, both beginning at 5:30 p.m. If there is still more to do, they will meet after their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 14. A public hearing is set for the Tuesday, Oct. 12, regular meeting with an budget adoption meeting on Monday, Oct. 25, at 5:30 p.m. The deadline for submitting the budget is Monday, Nov. 8.

• Heard from Kelly Bridges, acting director of the Children's Advocacy Center of Southeastern Indiana (CACSEI), with a request for $15,000 from from the County Council in 2022, triple the $5,000 the group was budgeted in the past. Bridges said Children's Advocacy Center, which helps children in the healing process after allegations of child abuse, neglect or assaults, hopes to expand its operation in 2022.

CACSEI primarliy serves Dearborn, Decatur, Jefferson, Jennings, Ohio, Ripley, Scott and Switzerland counties. She said last year the organization worked with 122 children in Jefferson County, and so far this year they have assisted with 95 children just slightly more than five months into the year. CACSEI operates primarily out of its Dillsboro location in Dearborn County with the Madison office in Jefferson County open two to three days per week as a satellite facility. Because of the increased case load in Jefferson County, Bridges said CACSEI would like to operate fully staffed five days a week in Madison in 2022.

Bridges said Jefferson County's problems are consistent with other counties.

"We think abuse is happening in all the counties," she said. "It's just that your team of law enforcement is working well at utilizing us. Abuse is happening in other counties at the same rate as here. You just have a really good and proactive at targeting leads to better prosecute."

"This is something that is done in other communities across the state ... it keeps the golf course inside the parks system but delegates management," Courtney said, adding the Golf Board can focus on that facility while the Parks Board can then tackle issues related to other parks in the system ranging from Crystal Beach Pool, to Rucker Sports Complex, the Madison Campground and the various neighborhood parks throughout Madison.

Gallatin will continue to report directly to Madison Parks Director Matt Woolard but in terms of setting policy and making decisions affecting the course and its patrons, the Golf Board will be there to offer input.

"We want both male and female members and people who are actively engaged in golf or who bring something to the board," Courtney said of his vision for Golf Board membership.

While the board will be created during his administration — and all appointments are his to make — future mayors will be able to name their own board members but the board itself cannot be dissolved without Parks Board approval. Also, under terms of the proposal, the Parks Board would still control the golf course budget and big decisions like the fee structure.

"Everything you now approve, you will continue to approve," Courtney said.

He said the idea came during his administration's comprehensive study of the parks system and Sunrise over the past several months found that management of the golf course is a complex issue on its own. By establishing a board dedicated to just the golf course, he could free up more of the Parks Board's time to work on a long overdue major update to the city's overall Master Plan for Parks, management of other parks facilities like Rucker Sports Complex and developing a capital improvement plan for the entire parks system that will likely require a bond issue for financing.

Courtney said he intends to act fast on naming the Golf Board members so that they are in place by the time Gallatin takes over. However, he noted that Gallatin comes well prepared to execute the changes Sunrise needs to balance its costs and revenues and put the course on track to not only eliminate the deficit but make a profit and generate the revenue needed to provide long overdue upgrades to the facility.

After expenses were trimmed and fees were increased earlier this year, the course is on track to turn last year's deficit into a small profit this year. Gallatin's marketing skills and upgrades to the Sunrise Grill, the pro shop, a three way liquor license and recruitment of additional corporate sponsors could drive profits even higher.

The course is in the process of developing a marketing plan to establish a higher profile online and increase the reach of the course outside the local area to bring in more paying customers.

The city already established an online reservation system that is allowing play to be tracked in more ways and more timely than ever before. Data is showing that season pass holders are still getting their money's worth despite paying higher rates in 2021.

Through the first five months of the season, pass holders are averaging 19 rounds played and are two rounds away from breaking even with what daily play fees would have cost for the same number of rounds.

"Our season pass holders are already at break even," Courtney noted. "They will be playing the rest of the season for free so our season pass golfers are still getting good value for their money."

Lane closures on Ohio River bridge extended for repairs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOUISVILLE — A bridge over the Ohio River that connects Kentucky and Indiana needs repair work, which means some lanes will be closed longer than expected, officials said.

The three left lanes of the Interstate 65 Kennedy Bridge were closed Monday for an inspection and crews determined an expansion joint needed to be repaired, the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet said in a statement.

Three of the six bridge lanes connecting Jeffersonville, Indiana, and Louisville, Kentucky, will remain closed until the repairs are completed to avoid damaging vehicles traveling across the span, the statement said. A timeline for repairs wasn't given.

Expansion joints allow the bridge to expand and contract with temperature, officials said. The structural integrity of the bridge is not affected.

Go with true love

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I've been seeing this guy for almost a year now. We practically live together, in fact. At first, to be honest, we just "hooked up" for, as he put it, "pleasure." But over the course of about three months of these hookups, our relationship got a little more serious, and now, almost a year later, we have deep feelings for each other. We both know that we love each other, too. We talk about our future, making plans for trips together.

The problem is that two of my sons aren't happy about or accepting of our relationship. You see, there is a big age difference between my guy and me. I'm 52, and he is exactly half my age. We don't look at that as a big deal, since we connect on so many levels. Sure, there are some things that are not what each of us are accustomed to, but we look past those things. He has made me feel more sexy and desired than any other man as well. But my two oldest sons, who are older than him, just can't get past the age gap. My oldest son is dead set against it. Any advice you can give me would be appreciated. — In Love but Losing

Dear ILBL: The part of your letter that struck me the most was that you say you and your beau "both know" that you love each other: It implies that you two haven't actually said those words to each other. If that's the case, it's time for a "define the relationship" conversation so you can make sure that you're on the same page. If this is indeed true love, then set aside your sons' disapproval. Over time, as they see how much this man means to you, they may come around. A family counseling session including you and your sons might help with the process.

Dear Annie: This is in response to "Heart in Shambles," who found out her boyfriend was cheating on her after his other girlfriend sent her a message. From my personal experience, I'd bet her heart is not the only one in shambles. I've been married to the same man for almost 54 years. Let me just say "Heart in Shambles" could have been the women he had affairs with at different times throughout our marriage. I could have told each of them he would never leave me or his children for either one of them. I knew this as a fact, because no matter how much I knew about his philandering, he was always here for holidays or any other celebrations or times he needed to be here. I knew he would never leave.

I won't go into the whys of my decision to stay with him; they are varied and complicated. And every time I read a letter such as hers, I almost feel sorry for women like that.

As an aside, we have both been retired for over a decade, and we are growing older happily, in spite of the heartaches. But whether I speak it out loud or not, the pain and humiliation are still there no matter how much time has passed.

Please continue to advise those like "Heart in Shambles" that they can do better and they should always choose to do better. — Cracked but Not in Shambles

Dear Cracked: Time heals most wounds, but scars are a different story. I am glad you and your husband were able to find happiness on the other side of infidelity, though I'm sorry to hear you're still carrying that pain. Thanks for the perspective.

Let her go

Dear Annie: I am a man in my late 50s. Until recently, I was in a long-distance relationship with a woman — let's call her "Maria" — who lives about a thousand miles away from me. Last month, out of the blue, she accused me of cheating on her with her cousin, who lives about 45 minutes away from me. This is 100% not true. I met the cousin only once, when Maria was in town for a visit last year. I have not seen or communicated with her cousin since!

Because of these accusations and Maria's insistence that she is right, sadly, we have split. I love Maria, and I have always told her that and showed her in every way I could. We haven't talked in weeks, since our conversations kept ending in arguments. She says she has "proof," which she has yet to show. She absolutely cannot have proof, because it didn't happen! But how do I prove that something did not happen? Maria and I talked or texted every night, and I told her to call me or video chat me anytime to show I was alone at night. In past relationships, Maria has had trust issues and cheating partners, so I'm thinking that might be where this is coming from. Is there any hope? — Wrongfully Accused

DEAR ANNIE

Dear Wrongfully Accused: I see two possibilities here. Option A: Maria was looking for an excuse to end the relationship, so she invented one. Option B: She truly believes that you cheated on her, despite your giving her no reason to believe such a thing. Either way, my advice is to let her go. A loving partner doesn't make baseless, hurtful accusations.

Dear Annie: I am new to online dating. I started up with it after my husband's sudden death last year. He died just before the COVID-19 shutdowns began, which left me feeling even more isolated and sad. I moved away from my hometown to be closer to my oldest son, but I don't know anyone in this town aside from him.

Being so lonely, a few months ago I started going on Facebook and a dating app to try to meet men. I connected with one man I was interested in. Instead of stopping there, though, I kept chatting around and connected with seven more guys. I chat with each of them daily. They all say that they'll love me forever, but not one has come to meet me in person yet. I'd prefer to have a boyfriend whom I could actually meet in person.

I like all of them, and I love something about each of them, but I feel torn, since I can only marry one man. I hate to hurt seven men. Do you think that I made a big mistake by talking to eight men? I feel bad that I've been holding up their lives just to break their hearts. — Lonely Widow

Dear Lonely: I'm so sorry for the loss of your husband. It's wonderful you've taken initiative to reach out to others to alleviate your sense of isolation. But you won't find real companionship in men who can't even be bothered to meet you in person (and who could be scammers).

Rather than wasting your time chatting with these men online, get outside and get to know your new town. Join a book club, walking group, tennis clinic — anything that piques your interest. The point is to plant your seed and let a social life take root.

If you do decide to try meeting men online, stick to well-reputed dating sites such as Match.com, and when you think you have a connection with someone, promptly make plans to meet in person in a coffee shop or other public place.

Council honors veteran, citizens, swears in officers

BY MARK CAMPBELL

Madison City Council honored a war veteran, recognized three residents for outstanding citizenship and issued the oath of office to two new police officers along with other business before a packed audience at Madison City Hall on Tuesday.

The first order of business was to recognize Donald Joe King as the 2021 recipient of the city's Jon Menke Award for Military Service, named in honor and recognition of the 22-year-old Madison native who died on Aug. 4, 2008, in Baghdad, Iraq, while serving in the US Army during Operation Iraqi Freedom.

King, who attended the ceremony with his wife and several family members, grew up in Saluda and served during World War II. He fought and was captured during the Battle of the Bulge, became a prisoner of war on Dec. 24, 1944, and spent months in a German POW camp until the camp was liberated and he was freed on April 2, 1945.

King, now 98, lost 50 pounds while surviving starvation conditions in a German POW camp that was so cold it was called "Little Siberia." He did not address the audience but he did become a little emotional during a video presentation and remarks by local and state officials.

"You are absolutely a real American hero," said State Sen. Chris Garten, a veteran himself.

"I can't imagine a higher honor than meeting you — someone who endured so much so that we can be here tonight as free Americans," State Rep. Randy Frye said. "There will never be enough thank yous."

In other recognitions, Madison Police Chief John Wallace and Mayor Bob Courtney presented certificates of appreciation for Outstanding Citizenship to Michael S. Malone, Ricky L. Erwin and Jesse Hutchinson for their efforts to assist a 3-year-old girl who was lost in the 500 block of Jefferson Street at about 10 p.m. on May 21.

In other ceremonies, Curtis J. Shelpman and Kyle W. Potter also took their oaths of office to become the two newest members of the Madison Police Department. Shelpman has two years of law enforcement experience, has completed training and been assigned to patrol duties. Potter, who has worked in law enforcement at an Indianapolis hospital, is completing training and will be assigned to patrol after graduating.

In other business, the council:

• Approved a resolution authorizing the sale of city property to the State of Indiana and specifically the Indiana Department of Transportation. The tract, which Madison Deputy Mayor and Chief of Staff Mindy McGee said is less than 3200 square feet, is located at 201 Ferry Street around a sewage lift station just north of the Key West Shrimp House. INDOT will pay $6,725 for the property with the site to be used in a project to replace a collapsed culvert on State Road 56.

• Approved amendments to the city's Parks Ordinance and to establish an account to receive funding from the American Rescue Plan Fund.

• Heard concerns about storm water drainage from Nancy Underwood, of Crozier Avenue, who said rain water overflows drainage area and soaks the ground around her home and her neighbors' homes each time it rains. She asked what the city could do to correct the problem.

Courtney said the city does not have storm water drains on the hilltop — due mainly to the way developers designed and built those neighborhoods and subdivision long ago — and that the issue is a long term problem with no easy solution.

• Heard a request by Lisa Ferguson, who admitted she has become known locally as the "flag lady," for the city to petition Duke Energy to allow larger American flags to be installed on utility poles in the city like those flown in other communities.

Street Supervisor Tony Sorrells reported that the city last week ordered 150 new 3-foot-by 5-foot American flags to be installed on utility poles along Main Street and several other areas.

• Heard a request by Jill Kelly Koren, representing the Madison Area Anti-Racism Community Hub (MAARCH) for Justice. Koren appealed to city officials to take steps to make Madison a more inclusive community and to be proactive in the elimination of systemic, institutional, and cultural racism in the community and offered that group's support in the process.

STAGE

"I'd like it to really catch on to the point we have 10 or more musicians in here on Tuesdays, waiting their turn at the mic."

Davis was the open mic host before COVID shut it down, and he's looking forward to getting things going again. "I'm more excited now than ever before," Jimmy relates. "There are more musicians living here than ever, more young new talent, and more energy around the music scene.

"This time out I'm going to bring in two of my great friends to help out, Danny Cook playing bass and Kerry Mefford on drums. It will give open mic singers a chance to do their thing with a full band behind them, and a really talented band at that. In fact, we want to encourage singers who may not even play an instrument to come out and give it a try. If we know the song, we'll back you up on it.

"The process is super super easy. Just come in on any Tuesday night and let me know you're here. I'll put you into rotation for your turn on stage. You can do one song or do three or four, whatever you want. And everybody gets to play, we make sure of it.

"Once people do it just once they get over the shyness and they are eager to do it again. It's like a dam bursts and all the pent up songs just flood out. I feel like it empowers people to grow as musicians and as people. I'm so glad we can bring an open mic back for all of Madison to enjoy."

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

This Saturday in Madison will present a dilemma to any die-hard music fan. You'll need to choose from top musical talent happening at four or five places at once, including blues master Jason Wells at Mad Paddle and funk princess Joslyn & the Sweet Compression at Red Bicycle Hall. The band at Thomas Family, Dawson Hill, features several guys from Mickey Clark's old band. And if you're looking for something more intimate and even sing-along fun, check out Joe Perkinson at the Riverboat Inn. The music calendar is "phat" again, and Madison is in full swing!

Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

COUNCIL

In a jail related issue, Bramer fielded some questions about the water contract for the new jail facility to be located at 1150 JA Berry Lane. In last month's meeting, the County Council unanimously passed a resolution that the water should be purchased from Madison Water because they think that would be more cost efficient than buying from Dupont Water Company.

"Because of your action last month their lawyer drafted a letter" in which a lawsuit was again threatened, Bramer said. He said Dupont is continuing to work with a consultant about what the water rates would be for the jail.

"No one wants a lawsuit, but what's the cut-off date?" said Copeland. With construction work slated to begin soon, "how long can we wait until this is done?"

In other business, the Council:

• Received information from Amber Finnegan, court services director, concerning requirements of Indiana House Bill 1068 which go into effect July 1. She said the new law requires the establishment of an advisory council to review local justice systems policies and procedures, and ensures they are being followed. Council member Chris Shelton, who already serves on an existing justice council, agreed to serve as representative for the County Council.

• Agreed to create a full-time Circuit Court position from one that has previously been part-time. Circuit Court Judge D.J. Mote said the new position, which will partly involve working with Title IV-D, will pay 30,000 annually with $14,627.32 in benefits with federal reimbursement dollars offsetting part the costs. Mote said he "is terribly excited" to have the position. "We are so desperate for help. This means a great deal to me to have your support," Mote added.

• Approved a $12,000 contract for a part-time position to manage the jail's commissary. The position will be entirely funded through the commissary, although that money must first go into the county's general fund before being paid back out. County Sheriff Dave Thomas said the commissary has been a great benefit to the county's law enforcement through the additional funding it is providing. He said commissary revenue provided $32,000 for new bullet-proof vests for county officers. "We were able to get top-of-the-line vests," Thomas said, who said that provides better protection for the officers than would not have been possible otherwise. "It's an all-win situation."

• Heard from County Assessor Karen Mannix who reported she is accepting bids for cyclical reassessment for all properties in Jefferson County. The bids, which will provide four-year contracts for vendors, will be opened Thursday, June 17, at 1 p.m. The contracts, once awarded, would begin March of 2022 and continue the next four years through 2026.

Madison's streak of boys golf sectional wins came to an end by the smallest of margins Monday when the Cubs were edged by Austin by just two strokes at the IHSAA Boys Golf Sectional at Sunrise Golf Course.

The Cubs have won 24 sectional titles — tied for ninth most in state history — including every sectional crown dating back to the 2011-12 season. On Monday, Madison shot a 322 and had two of the top five individuals, but Austin placed three scorers under 80 to shoot a 320 to edge the Cubs for the Eagles first-ever sectional crown in golf.

While Madison failed to win the trophy, the Cubs did advance to the regional tournament — the only local team to do so — for a 17th-consecutive season. Southwestern finished fifth with a 357, missing the regional cut by 14 strokes. Switzerland County was seventh with a 367 and Shawe finished eighth with a 370.

Individually, Southwestern's Austin Kramer shot a 77 to finish first among those not from advancing teams to punch his ticket to the regional for the second time in three years and will be joined at the regional by Switzerland County's Bryce Wrightsman, whose 82 earned the third and final qualifying spot for individuals.

A rough start across the board for the Cubs is what ended up costing Madison the sectional crown. The only Madison golfer to finish the front nine within four strokes of par was Clayton Benkert, who posted a 40 from the No. 5 position.

Senior Luke Ommen, Madison's top golfer, in particular, had a rough time. He hit his opening tee shot on No. 1 out of bounds onto Michigan Road and was four-over just three holes into the match. He recovered slightly to complete the first nine with a 41 then caught fire on the back side, collecting birds on Nos. 11 and 12 to right the ship.

Ommen finished his round with a 75, which was three-strokes back of low-medalist Westin Allen from Henryville, but it was good enough for second-best. Jackson Lynch, who also shot 41 on the front nine, finished with a 78, good for fifth overall. Benkert ended up shooting an 83, Burk Shelley had an 86 and Mitchell Liter carded a non-scoring 90 to round out Madison's scoring.

Like Ommen, Kramer struggled on the front nine with a 40 before finding his groove over the final nine holes, aided by a chip-in from 40 yards out on No. 16 that went for an eagle. Teammate Foster Mefford shot an 87, Matt Mingione had a 94, Bill Tingle a 99 and Logan Williams carded a 120.

Wrightsman was one of the few local golfers to do better on the front than the back, following a 40 with a 42 to card an 82. Teammate Austin Wolf shot an 88, Jacob Williams a 98, Evan Bosaw a 99 and Adrian Armstrong a 108.

Turner was also better on the front, shooting a 41 and finishing with an 85. Charlie Liter had a 90, Davis Grote a 97 and Christian Whitham a 98.

Henryville, led by Allen's even-par 72, placed third as a team with a 343 to earn the final regional berth. Scottsburg's Landon Gricius shot an 81 to earn a regional spot as an individual.

The IHSAA Regional will be held at Champions Pointe Golf Club near Henryville today starting at 8 a.m. Largely considered to be the toughest regional in the state, seven ranked teams will be vying for three team spots to the state finals in Carmel next week.

Retired QB Rivers wins NFL writers' Good Guy Award

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Retired quarterback Philip Rivers has won the Pro Football Writers of America's Good Guy Award for his cooperation with reporters.

Rivers, who retired at 39 after one season with Indianapolis in 2020 following 16 years with the San Diego and Los Angeles Chargers, earned praise for consistently tackling all topics, even in a Zoom setting, and offering answers with perspective, wit and originality during his career.

The Good Guy Award is given to an NFL player for qualities and professional style in helping pro football writers do their jobs. The award has been presented annually by the PFWA since 2005.

"Throughout his career, in good times and bad, Philip Rivers was unwavering in his professionalism in dealing with the media," said Sam Farmer, a Los Angeles Times writer and 2019 PFWA Career Achievement Award winner. "He was accessible and thoughtful, and more than that, he was a really good guy. That set the tone for the entire locker room and, by and large, his teammates followed his lead."

Rivers was the fourth overall pick in 2004 by the Chargers and set franchise records by completing 4,908 of 7,591 passes for 59,771 yards and 397 touchdowns. He went to eight Pro Bowls and was the PFWA's 2013 Comeback Player of the Year.

Rivers led the Colts to the playoffs last season, throwing for 4,169 yards and 24 touchdowns. Indianapolis lost to Buffalo in an AFC wild-card game. He led the Chargers to the playoffs seven times, reaching the AFC championship game once.

OKLAHOMA CITY — Florida State freshmen Kalei Harding and Kaley Mudge have the Seminoles knocking on the door of a national title.

Harding homered and drove in four runs and Mudge had three hits, leading Florida State past No. 1 seed Oklahoma, 8-4, in the opener of the Women's College World Series championship on Tuesday night.

Mudge, who had 16 hits all season before the World Series, increased her WCWS total to a record-tying 13.

Sydney Sherrill added a two-run single during a five-run fourth inning for the 10th-seeded Seminoles (49-11-1), who need a victory on Wednesday or Thursday in the best-of-three series to win their second NCAA title in four years.

They'll again have to play what amounts to a road game, 25 miles from Oklahoma's campus.

"It's going to take all of us and all of our fight," Mudge said. "Oklahoma is a great team, and we know they have some hot bats and some good pitchers. Just focusing on us, focusing on what matters. And what matters is the people in our circle."

Harding finished 3-for-4 and scored twice while batting ninth.

"Kalei has been amazing all season," Florida State coach Lonni Alameda said. "She's had a big role for us as a freshman. She's played a lot of different positions. She's been at the top of the lineup for most of the season and has done incredible."

Seminoles ace Kathryn Sandercock got the final four outs for the save, stopping a rally by Oklahoma, which scored two runs in the fourth inning and two more in the sixth after falling behind 7-0.

Downtown COVID-19 test center set to close June 23

Mobile clinic to make second visits next week

BY BOB DEMAREE

Madison's downtown COVID-19 testing site at 208 West Main Street will be closing Wednesday, June 23, after Gov. Eric Holcomb's rolled back funding along with other revisions to his executive orders related to the pandemic. Once the testing site closes, the building, which has been used as a Senior Citizens Center, will be cleaned and refreshed for use by the Madison Parks Department and its senior programming.

Meanwhile, next week the Jefferson County Health Department's mobile vaccination clinic will make its second round of visits throughout the unincorporated areas of the county to provide the second shot to those who received their first vaccinations last month.

With the exception of one site, all days and locations are identical to the county's trash collection schedule including: Chelsea/Saluda area across the highway from Chelsea General Store, Monday from 2-6 p.m.; Deputy at the Deputy Store, Tuesday from 2-6 p.m.; Dupont at the feed mill, Wednesday from 2-6 p.m.; Rykers Ridge near Wolf Run Road, Thursday from 2-6 p.m.; Downtown Madison at House of Hope, 100 East Second Street, Friday from 9-11 a.m.; Canaan Fire Company, Friday from 1-3 p.m. and Brooksburg at the park, Friday 4-6 p.m.

In Jefferson County, 13,211 residents have been fully vaccinated (40.8% of the county's population) with 13,084 receiving the first of a two-dose series. At Tuesday's night's Madison City Council meeting, Mayor Bob Courtney reported that 80% of the higher risk older population in Jefferson County has been vaccinated.

Appointments can be scheduled by visiting www.ourshot.in.gov or by calling 211. Walk-ins are welcome Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 2 p.m.-5 p.m., and Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Everyone 12 years of age and older is eligible. An adult must accompany a child 12 to 15 to the appointment; parental consent is required for minors.

Switzerland County Health Department is operating a vaccine clinic at the Switzerland County Technology and Education Center, 708 West Seminary Street, Vevay.

Kentuckians should visit vaccinemap.ky.gov to find a COVID-19 vaccination site near them.

Pacers fire Bjorkgren as coach after just one season

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Kevin Pritchard hired Nate Bjorkgren to take the Indiana Pacers in a new direction.

They wound up going the wrong way.

After struggling defensively, missing the playoffs for the first time in six seasons and amid reports of locker room drama, the Pacers pulled the plug Wednesday when Pritchard, their president of basketball operations, fired Bjorkgren as coach after just one season.

"The 2020-21 season was not what any of us hoped or anticipated it would be, and our results on the court certainly did not meet the standards for what our organization and our fans have come to expect," Pritchard said in a statement.

Indiana went 34-38, finishing the season with an embarrassing 142-115 loss to Washington in the play-in tournament. The Pacers also produced their first losing season at home in 32 years, and at times the effort didn't appear to be there, either.

A rash of injuries was part of the problem. Indiana's top scorer in 2019-20, T.J. Warren, suffered a season-ending foot injury after just four games. NBA blocks champion Myles Turner went down with a season-ending foot injury on April 18. And after trading two-time All-Star Victor Oladipo for swingman Caris LeVert in January, LeVert missed the next 24 games after team doctors found a cancerous growth on his left kidney.

"I've never really seen anything like it," potential free agent Doug McDermott said. "I think part of it had to do with the schedule. A lot of games, not a lot of days off. I think we had eight games in 12 days to finish the season."

But the more tumultuous part of Bjorkgren's brief tenure came outside the lines.

While Warren publicly disputed a report that he didn't want to play for the coach following the season finale, other concerns spilled into the open. Warren also played for Bjorkgren when he was an assistant in Phoenix.

The injured Turner helped break up a spat between his replacement, Goga Bitadze, and assistant coach Greg Foster during a game in early May. Bitadze was fined and Foster was suspended for one game.

And Pritchard said players used the word "micromanaged" during interviews after their season ended.

Amid all of it, Pritchard declined to make an immediate decision after the loss to Washington and instead opted for more meetings with the former top assistant coach to Toronto coach Nick Nurse.

"Nate and I will have a long conversation over many days about what he needs to improve on," Pritchard said on May 24. "But to make a decision on a coach this quick with this information, I'm not prepared to do that right now."

The Pacers haven't said what changed, but Pritchard also faced criticism during and after the underwhelming season.

Indiana has now fired two coaches in less than 12 months. Pritchard fired Nate McMillan in August after a third consecutive first-round playoff exit, just weeks after giving him a contract extension. McMillan helped take the Atlanta Hawks into the second round this season after losing his final nine playoff games with the Pacers.

"You can't wait. You can't sit back and wait. And when you're on a stage like this, you've just got to play well. You've got to pitch well. You've got to hit well. You've got to do a lot of things well."

— Patty Gasso
Oklahoma coach

"You can't wait," Oklahoma coach Patty Gasso said. "You can't sit back and wait. And when you're on a stage like this, you've just got to play well. You've got to pitch well. You've got to hit well. You've got to do a lot of things well."

Seminoles starter Danielle Watson allowed four runs in 5 2/3 innings to get the win.

Kinzie Hansen and Nicole Mendes homered on consecutive pitches and Mackenzie Donihoo had a two-run single for the Sooners (54-4).

Harding opened the scoring with a two-run homer in the third inning off Oklahoma starter Nicole May, who allowed seven runs in 3 2/3 innings.

Harding's two-run double in the fourth made it 4-0, and Sherrill — from nearby Moore, Oklahoma — drove in two more in the five-run inning.

Sherrill also threw out Oklahoma's Tiare Jennings at the plate in the bottom of the seventh to preserve the Seminoles' four-run advantage.

"I made a horrific call," Gasso said. "And I own that. I should not have sent Tiare. I just really in my mind was wanting to push the envelope to create momentum. ... I wear that. I already apologized to the team. And that was a bad call by me."

The Seminoles got an unusual insurance run in the seventh. Josie Muffley was held up late at third on Harding's single, and Anna Shelnutt was thrown out while scrambling back to second. Muffley broke for the plate and was tagged out, but an obstruction call against catcher Lynnsie Elam gave Florida State the run.

"It hurt us," Gasso said. "That call hurt us. And all I can say is that I wish that rule was looked at a little bit differently because there's a lot of ways that you can look at it. And I guess I'll just leave it right there at that."

NCAA rules official Vickie Van Kleeck said the call was correct.

"When the catcher put her knee down before catching the ball, that does constitute as blocking the plate because she cannot be in that position blocking the path of the runner or blocking the plate without possession of the ball," Van Kleeck said in a statement.

Muffley stayed down briefly after the collision at the plate before getting up and leaving the field. She was replaced in the bottom of the inning.

The Seminoles expect her back in the lineup Wednesday.

"Josie is definitely the toughest player I've ever played with," Harding said. "She'll take whatever. She'll take so many hits, so many hit-by-pitches, so many collisions. But she'll get right back up. And I'm pretty sure you'll see her out on the field tomorrow with a huge smile on her face."

Gasso expects Oklahoma to bounce back. Each time the Sooners have lost this season, they have recovered to beat that team the next time they played.

"I don't need to tell them," she said. "They know. They know exactly how this works. And I mean you've got to put it all out there. And I think we learned from the way we played tonight. And I'm very confident as I know they are that they will not repeat that performance and have a different mentality of fight, even when things aren't going our way."

RIVERS

Local Cub Scout wins district pinewood derby

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Credence Henderson, of local Cub Scout Pack 718, took first place in his division at the Muscatatuck District Pinewood Derby competition in Vernon, Indiana, on Saturday.

Henderson, who will be a fourth grader at Anderson Elementary School, won the competition among Bear Scouts, which is open to third graders. He is the son of Eric and Alynza Henderson of Madison, Indiana.

Scouts, with help from their parents, build and design their own cars which must weight no more than 5 ounces and cannot exceed $2^{3}/_{4}$ inches in width and 7 inches in length. Each scout gets four chances to race their car down the 32-foot track against two other competitors and places are determined by fastest average time.

Henderson's car posted a total time of 13.0774 seconds over the four races with an average of 151.20 mph to take the top spot.

The Muscatatuck District of the Hoosier Trails Council covers eight counties in southeastern and central Indiana. In addition to Jefferson the council includes Bartholemew, Dearborn, Decatur, Jackson, Jennings, Ripley, Ohio and Switzerland counties.

Regatta gala tickets now on sale

BY THE COURIER STAFF

It's a year of celebration for boat racing in the City of Madison, not just because the Madison Regatta is back after being canceled last year the COVID-19, pandemic, but because it's a year of special anniversaries and Nate Davis, longtime active supporter of hydroplane racing, thinks it's worth commemorating with a Gala event.

This will be the 70th anniversary of the Madison Regatta, the 60th anniversary of the Miss Madison racing team, and the 50th anniversary of Miss Madison's first Gold Cup win in 1971 on its home waters.

"How many communities can say they've been in racing 70 years, had a race boat for 60 years, and are enjoying a Gold Cup win 50 years later?" Davis asked.

The Madison Regatta Gala will be Thursday, July 1, at the Livery Stable, 313 Broadway Street, beginning at 6 p.m. with an hour of meeting and greeting. The dinner starts at 7 p.m. followed by speakers to include former Miss Madison drivers Buddy Byers and Ron Snyder, and current Miss Madison driver Jimmy Shane, along with other special remembrances of the Miss Madison racing team and the Madison Regatta. An auction is scheduled for 10 p.m.

Cost is $35 for individuals and $60 for couples. Tickets are available through June 25 on the Madison Regatta website or by contacting Davis at 812-701-2229. Each attendee will receive a numbered, commemorative 70th anniversary Madison Regatta pin.
